Sherrif's Department joins anti-DUI effort

The Appomattox County Sheriff's Department, along with other Central Virginia law enforcement departments are participating in a drunk driving deterrence program.

Each local department is, or soon will be, displaying a "DUI Prohibited" bumper sticker on police vehicles. Law enforcement officials want to re-emphasize to the general public that driving under the influence (DUI) is against the law and that each department is committed to removing drunken drivers from Central Virginia's highways.

The bumper stickers were designed and printed for the local departments by the Central Virginia Alcohol Safety Action Program. The program has sent out 207 of the bumper stickers to the police departments.

PRISCILLA BRYANT competed in the Miss Springtime Pageant held July 24 at Brookneal. She was first runner-up in the Spring Dutchess category, and received a trophy and a crown for the overall Queen of Hearts Sportsmanship award. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Bryant of Appomattox.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

AMS registration set

Any 7th and 8th grade student new to Appomattox County this year should come by Appomattox Middle School to register and choose subjects for the coming year if he or she has not already done so. A parent or guardian must accompany the student.

Registration is done in the guidance office (the green building next to the County library.) Mrs. Bolling Carter, the counselor, will work with parents and students in selection of subjects and in answering any other questions you may have. If you wish to talk to the counselor or to make an appointment, please call 352-2135.

Program teaches kids how to be alone

Learning to be at home alone is necessary for all children sooner or later.

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service has a 4-H program that helps teach children ages 9 to 11, some of the skills they need to have so that they will feel secure at home alone and their parents will be comfortable knowing the children will know what to do. Nancy U. Pfaffin, Virginia Cooperative Extension Agent at Alexandria, developed the program with Kathleen W. Wampler, retired Virginia Tech Extension specialist in family development.

The children should remember the following.

--Keep the doors locked when you are in the house.

--Always answer the telephone or doorbell.

--Never allow anyone inside the door unless your parents have given permission for that person to be inside the house.

--Keep conversations very brief when talking with someone on the telephone or at the door.

--Don't say that you are alone. That is nobody's business. Say your parents are busy and you will tell them of the call or visit. Write down the name and number of the caller or visitor. If the caller or visitor persists, hang up the telephone or close the door.

--If you are allowed to have friends in the home, never allow the friends to do things forbidden to you.

--Never enter the house if a door is open, window broken, or there is any other reason to believe someone is inside.

--Know which neighbor to call for help.

--Know how to call the police in an emergency. In some communities, help can be reached by dialing 911; in others, by dialing 0.

--Always remember to give your name, address and the reason for calling, when making an emergency call.

--Have some activities for the times that you are alone. Play with puzzles, play solitaire, write letters and get your homework finished.

--Have a specific time to call your parents or to be ready to receive a call from them.

--Know which household appliances you can use, and how to use them safely. Just knowing how to warm soup for a snack is a good start.

In Richmond Small business conference planned for September 20

Issues affecting Virginia's small businesses will be the focus of the 1983 Governor's Conference on Small Business, to be held September 20 at the Hotel John Marshall in Richmond. Sponsored by the Virginia Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber's Small Business Council and the Governor's Task Force on Small Business, the conference will be open to all interested small-business people.

The September 20 conference will emphasize what Virginia's small business community can expect in the areas of legislation, finance and assistance. Workshops will provide information on a variety of concerns, including small-business financing. Legislative sessions will provide insight into the upcoming legislative season, both the federal and state levels.

The first Governor's Conference on Small Business was held in 1982, with more than 350 attendees. Governor Charles Robb has called the conference "a major step forward to provide the Virginia small business community with the resources and ideas for growth and new success in the year ahead."

A written report on the 1983 Governor's Conference on Small Business, incorporating input from attendees, will be given to Governor Robb and members of the Virginia General Assembly prior to the 1983 legislative session.

The cost for the one-day conference, including lunch, is $40.00 per person. For further information, contact Don Goddard, Virginia Chamber of Commerce, 611 E. Franklin St., Richmond, Va. 23219, 804/644-1607.

Tips for volunteers at tax time

Volunteers should remember that they may deduct out-of-pocket expenses incurred while doing volunteer work for IRS approved groups, said Del A. Dyer, director of the Center for Volunteer Development at Virginia Tech.

Qualifying organizations include, but are not limited to, units of government; organizations formed for scientific, literary or educational purposes; and organizations for national or international sports competition. The organization must have prior approval as a qualifying organization from IRS. If in doubt, ask for proof of tax-deductible status.

The types of expenditures that volunteers may wish to deduct include: automobile mileage and expenses; bus and cab transportation expenses; parking and tolls; special uniforms; telephone bills; costs of meals and lodging if away overnight; travel expenses above per diem allowance; and tickets to charity benefits above the intrinsic value of admission.

The following may not be deducted: value of volunteer time donated; dependent car expenses; the volunteer's own meals unless part of an overnight trip away from home; and your own entertainment.

Automobile - related expenses may be deducted either at a nine cents per mile standard rate or an actual expenses basis.

The out-of-pocket requirement eliminates from deduction any amount that is to the direct benefit of the taxpayer (or the taxpayer's family) rather than to the organization. Consequently, most meals and entertainment are excluded.

Items for which a volunteer receives reimbursement may be deducted only to the extent that the actual expense exceeds the amount of compensation.

In general, the following requirements apply to the deduction.

--Must be amount actually paid during the taxable year, not a pledge.

--Must be made to a qualifying organization.

--Must be actual out-of-pocket amounts. If the banquet ticket is bought, the deduction is the amount in excess of the actual value of the meal.

--Must be recorded. The volunteer should know the name of the
